

Conditions for using the Royal Society advance access site:

- 1) The embargo for the Royal Society Scientific journals is 00.01 GMT Wednesday / 19.01 EST Tuesday
- 2) The embargo date and time accompanies all advanced material provided on this site. Embargoed information is not to be made public in any format, including print, television and radio, or via the Internet, before the embargo date.
- 3) Journalists should credit the full title of the journal (or published in a Royal Society Journal as a minimum) as the source of the information.
- 4) Advanced material is for background information only. Journalists may not redistribute the information within or outside their news organisation unless journalists do so to share embargoed papers with experts in the field to obtain relevant comment. Embargoed materials must be clearly labelled with the embargo date and time. Journalists are responsible for ensuring that all third parties honour the embargo.
- 5) Press offices may not post, release, or distribute embargoed material publically before the embargo lifts. However, press officers may distribute embargoed material to the media prior to, but no more than seven days before publication. Distributed material must be clearly labelled with the embargo date and time. External press offices are responsible for ensuring that all third parties honour the paper embargo.
- 6) Supporting materials provided by the Royal Society via this advanced access site, including images and video clips, must be credited to the appropriate source – listed on the site. These materials may not be used to illustrate stories unrelated to the relevant Royal Society journal article without expressed permission from the Royal Society press office.
- 7) The research papers published in Royal Society journals are written by independent authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the Royal Society.
- 8) Failure to adhere to this policy will result in withdrawal of access to all embargoed material issued by the Royal Society.

Notification of forthcoming papers:

Each week, the Royal Society press office issues a 'journals release' to notify members of the media of forthcoming papers that are due to be published in our weekly journals. This release also notifies journalists that the embargoed papers and supplementary material are available to view and/or download on the ePress site.
